Introduction

This selected name index to the Research Collection of Conservative and Libertarian Studies at the University of Oregon Library was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Research Resources Program. The purpose of the index is to promote effective use of these manuscript collections by providing a tool with which they can be accessed by researchers. A significant correspondent is often represented in many different collections. This index pulls those citations together so that all the letters of that correspondent may be located. Letters written by individuals significant in the conservative and libertarian movement of the 20th century were indexed as well as those of important historical figures or other notables.

The index is arranged alphabetically by correspondent followed by a listing of the collections in which the letters appear. A chronological listing of the dates of the letters correspond to the collection name. Letters with no dates appear as a blank space. These and letters with no year indicated appear first in the chronological listing. In general, the letters date primarily from the 1950s to the 1970s. If there were more than 25 letters from a single individual contained in one collection, a composite entry was made which includes the total number of letters, up to 999, and the inclusive dates of those letters. Cross-references to names of organizations in which individuals figured prominently are also provided.

Following is a list of the conservative and libertarian manuscript collections that were indexed and their call numbers. It should be noted that the letters of a person that appear in his or her own collection were not indexed. To locate specific letters as found on the name index, the researcher should consult the inventory to the collection in which the letters appear. Depending on the collection, the correspondence may be in chronological or alphabetical order. Correspondence may also be located in several places within a collection. Please ask the desk attendant for assistance.
