Has Your Son An Allowance?

Many parents of University students are worrying about the monthly allowance. It is sent about the first of the month; the student receives it, cashes the check and proceeds to spend it without any idea of where it is going. The average Freshman in the University is under twenty years old and has had little experience in handling money. Habits are soon formed at this age, and money carelessly spent and unaccounted for develops shiftless traits.

The EUGENE BANKS are anxious to assist University students in every way. They will be glad to receive deposits directly from parents by mail and to credit to the student's account.

Give your son or daughter the responsibility of a bank account. It will develop his character and teach him to handle his finances systematically.

ARTS AND PRE-ENGINEERING AT OREGON

By A. E. Caswell, Chairman of the work in Pre-Engineering.

When the history of engineering education in Oregon is written, April 18, 1921, may stand out as a red-letter day. For upon that date the board of higher curricula approved a schedule for a type of engineering instruction new to Oregon. The plan is in accordance with principles which are fast coming to be considered fundamental in the relation of the University to the higher education of the state. These principles may be summed up in the following phrases:

1. Educational standards second to none.
2. The best the University has to offer for the best students in the state.
3. Helping students to find themselves.
4. No straying in educational pastures.
5. Professionalizing undergraduate instruction.

Following the approval of the faculty of the new course of study, agreements have already been entered into with a limited number of selected engineering schools whereby students who have completed a prescribed three years' course of study at the University will be admitted on such a basis that they may reasonably expect to obtain the bachelor's degree in engineering at the end of two additional years, and the professional graduate degree of engineer at the end of the third year after leaving Oregon. To these students the University will grant its bachelor of arts degree upon the satisfactory completion of the first year's work at the engineering school. Thus the student will obtain the cultural bachelor of arts degree and the professional bachelor of science degree in five years, or the arts degree and the degree of engineer in six years.

Only the strong can pursue the newly approved course of study; but those who can follow it to the end will be an asset to the commonwealth and a credit to their Alma Mater.

The co-operating institutions include Columbia University, Cornell, Purdue, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado School of Mines, Stanford, California and O. A. C. From the East they write: "We wish to tell you how delighted we are to know that you are able to arrange a program which is satisfactory to yourselves and so entirely satisfactory to us (Columbia)." And the echo comes from the Golden Gate in these words: ". . . it would seem likely that such an arrangement . . . will become more common in the future . . . than has been the case in the past. . . . It is our hope therefore that such a plan can be worked out. (California.)"

A letter from the Oregon Agricultural College says in part: "Full credit will be allowed for work given at the University, and every effort will be made to arrange schedule so that these students may pursue their work most advantageously."

Within recent years the leading engineering schools of this country have found that engineering can no longer be considered an undergraduate profession. Just as the best medical schools require two, three or even four years of college training before the professional study of medicine is begun; and as the best law schools require two or three years of academic work as a preparation for the study of law; so the best engineering schools are coming to require an adequate preparation in the sciences fundamental to the practice of engineering. In addition to this foundation engineers—the best engineers—must be trained to take their places as men among men.

Engineering is a problem in economics. The labor question is a human problem with which the engineer frequently must deal. The best in engineering isn't always written in the English language, and the English language isn't the native tongue in many lands where American engineers are blazing the pathway of civilization. All of these facts have been kept in mind in the preparation of Oregon's answer to the problem.

Since 1914 the University has not offered any work in engineering. Nevertheless those sciences and collateral subjects which are so essential to the engineer have been given continuously, and from the nature of the case in a somewhat better fashion than is usually possible in the service courses of the professional schools. Moreover, year after year students come to Oregon because of family traditions, or because of Oregon's athletic prowess, or because of school friends already here. Many of these are the sort from which really first-class engineers are made. But because of lack of direction and opportunity they have drifted into courses for which they are not well adapted. It is true that some have come with the conscious intention of utilizing the resources of the institution as best they may and of then going to some high class engineering school.

Now the University has come to their aid. It has said in effect that it owes it to its students and to the state at large to see that they are trained for the community service for which they are endowed by the gifts of nature. Not every one who thinks he wants to become an engineer will be encouraged to follow the course, but only those who by their demonstrated ability prove that they are likely to succeed. The others will be directed elsewhere.

Care is being exercised in the organization of the curriculum leading to engineering as is shown by the following examples: The number of credit hours devoted to any subject is as much as, and frequently more than, is usually required in the better engineering schools. The work is also being differentiated to meet the needs of the embryonic engineers. For example, it is planned to have a special section of English composition made up of "pre-engineers." The work will include the writing of reports upon technical subjects. These will be corrected and rewritten until letter perfect. The student will then be called upon to present and defend them orally before the class, just as in later life he may be called upon to do before a board of directors.

It is hoped that schedule difficulties will not prevent a similar grouping of the students in advanced French and German, and for the same purpose. Two new courses in physics are offered for those who plan to follow engineering or the physical sciences. Before these courses are taken the student's mathematical tools will be well whetted. The department of mechan-

A CHANGE IN THE CHARACTER OF SUMMER SCHOOL

Two hundred thousand students will attend university summer sessions in the United States the summer of 1921, summer session authorities estimate. Summer sessions are becoming increasingly popular with the seekers of A.B. and A.M. degrees, as well as with those who want to teach better, to live more, or to find out.

The University of Oregon this year changed the title "summer session" to "summer term," the change implying a slight shifting in purpose. Both in Portland and in Eugene, summer courses will be of strictly collegiate rank, will grant full residence credit, and will aim especially to fit into A.B. and A.M. plans. The summer program will constitute a fourth half-term, a consistent successor to the three terms of the collegiate year.

"The new emphasis in summer work is indicated by the retention of deans," comments Earl Kilpatrick, general director. "In Portland, Dr. George Rebec, dean of the graduate school, will be in charge; and in Eugene, Colin Dymont, dean of the college of literature, science and the arts, will remain throughout the term.

"The Portland work will be more elementary and popular than in Eugene, where advanced and graduate work will be offered. Some of the characteristics of both sessions will be these:

"Relatively small classes; personal attention to the needs and requirements of individuals; ample opportunity for student participation in class discussions.

"Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, a member of the graduate council, will act as adviser to graduate students in the Eugene term. Students uncertain as to their summer programs should work them out in advance with Dr. Conklin."

Here are some of the men and women from outside who will appear on the summer faculties:

At Eugene—

Professor S. O. Hartwell, superintendent of schools of St. Paul, one of the leading city superintendents of the country. He has had many years' experience as a teacher, as a high school principal and as a superintendent. He has done college teaching and has appeared in the big summer sessions. He will give school administration and secondary education, courses of special value to grade school superintendents, city superintendents and high school principals.

Dr. Horace A. Eaton, head of English literature at Syracuse University, will give three courses: Shakespeare and his contemporaries, Victorian poets and modern drama.

Miss Margaret Crim, supervisor of city playgrounds and head of physical education in Mission high school, San Francisco, will give courses.

Mary Brown Humphrey, librarian at Washington State College, will assist Professor M. H. Douglass with courses in library training.

In Portland—

Dr. Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the Wisconsin State Historical Society, author of History of the Pacific Northwest, and joint author of Democracy and Reconstruction, will give courses in history.

Dr. William A. Morris, history department of the University of California, is just back from an extended stay in European countries and an intensive study of present conditions there. Dr. Morris will teach two courses in history.

Emilio Goggio of the University of Toronto will give Romance languages.

The resident members of the Eugene faculty will be:

President P. L. Campbell; Earl Kilpatrick, director of extension division; Colin V. Dymont, dean of the college of literature, science and the arts; Walter C. Barnes, professor of history; Ernest S. Bates, professor of rhetoric and American literature; Mrs. Anna Landsbury Beck, professor of public school music; John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education; George M. Bohler, instructor in physical education; R. C. Clark, professor of history; Timothy Cloran, professor of Romance languages; Edmund S. Conklin, professor of psychology and special adviser to graduate students in summer term; M. Lucile Copenhaver, instructor in mathematics; Harold R. Crosland, professor of psychology; B. W. DeBusk, professor of education; E. E. DeCou, professor of mathematics; M. H. Douglass, librarian; Grace Edgington, assistant professor of rhetoric and representative of the dean of women in summer term; Chester A. Gregory, professor of education; C. A. Huntington, instructor in physical education; Mrs. Laura R. Mack, instructor in art; Earl L. Packard, professor of geology; Fergus Reddie, professor of public speaking; E. C. Robbins, dean of the school of commerce; Ethel I. Sanborn, instructor in botany; F. L. Shinn, professor of chemistry; Ida V. Turney, instructor in rhetoric; J. L. Whitman, instructor in chemistry; Catherine Winslow, instructor in physical education; F. G. Young, dean of the school of sociology.

The Portland division will have the direct attention of both President Campbell and Earl Kilpatrick, and the following faculty assistance:

George Rebec, dean of the graduate school, director of the Portland extension center, and dean of the summer term in Portland; Margaret Sharp, secretary; William H. Boyer, supervisor of music, Portland public schools; Andrew Fish, assistant professor of rhetoric; Frederick W. Goodrich, instructor in music; Samuel C. Kohs, psychologist, court of domestic relations; Robert Krohn, supervisor of physical education, Portland public schools; Mable Holmes Parsons, professor of English literature; Philip A. Parsons, professor of sociology, director Portland school of social work; Elsie Patterson, instructor in art, Portland public schools.

The Unsolved Opal Whiteley Mystery

By W. F. G. Thacher, Professor of Rhetoric

A year has passed since the diary of Opal Whiteley was published in the exclusive pages of The Atlantic Monthly; six months since the diary, in book form, was placed on the shelves of the library of the University.

Not for years has there been a publication that aroused such a furor of comment. Most of the critics joined in a chorus of superlative praise; a few pronounced it a piece of unmitigated sentimentalism. An edition in England, with a preface by Viscount Gray of Falloen, was received with fervid acclaim.

Meanwhile, a controversy had arisen the like of which has not been known since one Thomas Chatterton set the literary world by the ears with the most famous (or infamous) hoax in history.

The issues, probably well known to the readers of OLD OREGON are: First, did Opal Whiteley write the diary at the age at which she says she wrote it (six or seven), or did she not? Second, is her claim that she is not in reality the daughter of "Ed" and Mary Elizabeth Whiteley, but a foster child, whose real parents died when Opal was five, true or false?

In the East and abroad where Opal herself and the general facts and conditions surrounding her early life were entirely unknown, both the diary and its writer were accepted without suspicion, and the doors of some of the most exclusive homes in Boston and elsewhere swung open for the young woman whose girlhood had been spent in the most lowly environment. But in and about Cottage Grove, in Eugene, and especially on the campus of the University, and even in Portland, there were many who did not hesitate to announce their skepticism—both as to the infantile authorship of the diary and the question of parentage. Numerous investigations were made, and many columns of evidence and argument appeared.

For a time the wordy war waged hotly; and then, as such matters will, died down—and for the last few months, little has been heard of the affair. A ripple of amusement was stirred when word came that, complying with the regulations, Opal submitted to the Library of Congress, as her true name, this: Opal deVere Gabrielle de Bourbon de la Tremoille Stanley Whiteley. It is understood that friendly relations no longer exist between Opal and Mr. Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic, and there is a report that the breach has yawned into a suit at law.

So far as is known, there are no communications between Opal and her old intimates in Oregon. The mooted young diarist is supposed to be living under the protection of a wealthy and charitable man in the East. Her patron, by the way, paid an unheralded visit to Cottage Grove not long since—with a view, it is conjectured, to acquaint himself with the facts of the birth and early experiences of his protege.

Of the many investigators who have attempted to unravel the mystery, the latest is Fred Lockley, the Oregon writer, who, in the April Bookman, presents a summary of the case and adds the results of a trip made to Cottage Grove. No new light is shed on the matter; but of interest are these words quoted by Mr. Lockley from the lips of Mrs. Scott, Opal's grandmother: "You want to know what I think about the mystery about Opal? I'll tell you, mister, the honest truth. There's no mystery—except the mystery of why Opal wants to disown her own folks and how she can get people to believe she is an adopted baby?" Continuing, Mrs. Scott calls attention to the striking resemblance between Opal and Opal's mother and sister Pearl, pictures of whom Mrs. Scott possesses. But Mr. Lockley confesses himself unable to solve the problem.

From the beginning, the two men who have investigated most thoroughly are Mr. Elbert Bede, the sagacious editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel, and Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the department of psychology in the University. Dr. Conklin's interest is largely in connection with his research in the "foster child fantasy." Mr. Bede, by reason of his somewhat intimate acquaintance with Opal's family and all the circumstances of her life after the time of the family's removal to the vicinity of Cottage Grove, is in a strategic position to learn the truth. And there is a shrewd suspicion that Mr. Bede knows—right today. But Mr. Bede is not ready to tell what he knows—not until the evidence is all in. And when the story is told—as it will be, some day—it is quite safe to opine that it will arouse as much interest as did the appearance of the famous diary a year ago.

THOSE WHO MADE THE WOMAN'S BUILDING POSSIBLE

In the March issue of OLD OREGON appeared a detailed description of the Woman's building, completed and occupied. Below is the first section of the list of its donors. Artists are now putting these names on two decorative, hand-lettered and illuminated tablets for the main lobby. Additional groups of names will be the Portland and Eugene donors, and the donors of memorials. The remaining names will appear in early issues of this publication.

- ALBANY—Albany Oregon Alumnae, Albany University Students, P. E. O. Sisterhood, Chalmer N. Patterson, Alfred C. Schmidt.
- AMITY—Amity Study Club.
- ASHLAND—Ashland University Students, G. H. Billings, H. H. Boyer, Dr. G. O. Jarvis, Overland Marcy Company.
- ASTORIA—Astoria Oregon Alumnae, Astoria University Students, Annie Bergman, Mrs. Fay Ball Bond, University of Oregon students, Grover W. Utzinger, Women's Civic Club, Friends.

The Mary Spiller Scholarship

There is an interesting commentary in the fact that the Mary Spiller scholarship, which has just been awarded to Miss Maple Dell Moore of Wilbur, has not been allowed to lapse in the ten years since it was started, although it now must pay twice as much as it did in 1911 to provide those simple necessities, food and shelter.

In 1911 the Alumnae association of the University set aside $135 for the scholarship; this year it gives $272.62. Six girls preceding Miss Moore have profited from the scholarship. It is given for one year and may be borrowed other years. It goes anywhere in the state except in the county of Lane. The aim is to aid girls of high scholastic record who might be delayed getting through college because of the necessity of being employed part time.

Applications are made through Mrs. Lawrence T. Harris, 1465 Chemeketa street, Salem, Oregon, and should be received early in each calendar year.

The new appointee is a junior, now in the University. The other scholarship girls were as follows: Ethelwyn Boydell, Nyssa; Bernice Thom, Alsea; Helen Withycombe, Yamhill; Lois Green, Myrtle Point; Helen Mayer, The Dalles; Laverne Rumbaugh, Portland.

Hertha Hanssen's Idea

This is the story of the welcome book agent. She is Hertha I. Hanssen, University of Oregon ex-'17.

She got into New York from San Francisco, and wanted a job. In a few hours she was writing her want ad, and a day or two later she was running down her two dozen replies. One was from a man who wanted an assistant to help him sell books on commission—he was not selling any particular book, but book-buying service. He would hunt up any book that any client wanted.

Miss Hanssen took the position and got with it a new idea—why not go round to vice-presidents and general managers who wanted all the good books on any business subject and save them the time of hunting. She found they wanted such service. And so today people write and phone her and she hurries from the private offices of financial giants to the private yachts of tobacco kings to find out what new books they'd like.

Many times she takes orders for whole business libraries that run into hundreds of dollars. When not busy on these she uses the telephone and sells an additional service idea in the form of a book-loaning plan that she has worked out.

An account of Hertha Hanssen's work appeared in a recent issue of Leslie's Weekly, accompanied by a picture of the "welcome book agent" speeding down the street, book in hand.

The Romany Creed

By Verne Bright, Student in Extension.

O give me the haunting laughter of the silver by-way;
Winding, turning, here, there, through the heart of Spring!
Give me the dusty, far lure of the russet high-way,
Straight through the year's heart, in enchanted wandering.

Give me the tender magic of the day-break hushes,
The emerald glint of corn-fields in the morning sun;
The little dawn-winds whispering to the lake-side rushes,
The haunting cries of killdees when the day is done.

Give me the voice of storm-winds, the murmur of April rain;
The seven-chorded rainbow against a westerling sky;
The silver gleam of birch trees; the green gleam of the plain;
The bronze-leaved oak trees; and pine trees pointing high.

Give me the smell of warm earth after summer showers;
The red wine of sunset; the star-glint in the night;
The far, shimmering blue hills; the musky marsh-flowers;
The rosy flare of snow-peaks dipped in morning light.

Give me the songs of wild birds a-calling in the trees;
The harsh clack of sea-gulls calling by the shore;
The sunny lilt of green grain a-tumbling in the breeze;
The green waves tumbling up the brown sand-floor.

Give me the snowy cloud-flake flying through the high blue;
The dreamy chant of rivers under a harvest moon;
The rank smell of dead ferns; the grass lying wet o' dew;
The rippling rime of the brooklet singing a song of June.

O give me life in the open, with never a care nor sorrow;
Let today go with yesterday, and the days that have gone before;
Let me sing down the brown road with no thought of tomorrow,
With a lusty shout for Romany till the love of life is o'er.

Then when the spell is ended, give me, O God, to die,
When all the world is a fairy-place that only the dreamers know,
When all the hills are golden flames, and autumn winds are high,
And the sky a-west is Thy face, alight in the world's last afterglow!

THE PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE AT EUGENE

Track prospects are good at the present time. With five old letter men to form the nucleus of the new squad and many candidates out, Coach Bill Hayward anticipates a successful year.

For the first time since track was made an intercollegiate sport the student body and the people of Eugene will have the opportunity of seeing the Pacific Coast Conference meet at home, May 21. Washington State College, Oregon Agricultural College, California and Stanford will all send teams. Oregon will be in an excellent shape to handle them. The new track around Hayward Field is at present nearly completed. The gravel foundation has been laid and cinders have been ordered for the top layer. When it is completed it will compare favorably with any other track on the coast.

In addition to the conference meet there will be a dual meet with O. A. C. on the home field. This will take place the Saturday preceding the Conference meet. The freshmen, too, will hold a meet at home with Washington High School of Portland.

Two trips are in store for the varsity this year. The first will be to Seattle when a dual meet will be held with the University of Washington, May 7, and the second trip to Pullman, June 4, when Oregon will enter a team in the Northwest Conference meet.

There is ample track material to choose from: The mile race is well defended by Glenn Walkley, who ran for the varsity, and Guy Koepp, who took several firsts for the freshmen last year. "Speed" Peltier can be relied upon to make the best of them work hard in the half mile. Sunderleaf and Hay-slip, both letter men, and Collins and Larson, freshmen last year, should make a relay team that is hard to beat. Art Tuck is expected back this term. He was a representative from the University at the Olympic games last year. He is good for several points in the discus and javelin. "Scotty" Strachan, letter man, and Shields and Brown are out for places in the weights, while Portland and Phillips are expected to win laurels in the pole vault.

The season's schedule for both Varsity and Freshmen follows:

Varsity

April 28—Relay Carnival .....	Seattle
May 7—Dual Meet with University of Washington .....	Seattle
May 14—Dual Meet with O. A. C. ....	Eugene
May 21—Pacific Coast Conference Meet (Junior Week-end) .....	Eugene
June 4—Northwest Conference Meet .....	Pullman

April—Preliminary Meet with some High School .....
May 7—Washington High School .....	Eugene
May 14—Dual Meet with O. A. C. Rooks .....

In addition the Freshmen will probably meet the all-star high school team at Eugene.

OREGON TAKES NORTHWEST TITLE IN BASKETBALL

Spurred on by the creditable showing made on the northern trip, Oregon's basketballers returned to Eugene to complete the season's schedule, all but two games with O. A. C. to be played on the home floor. By virtue of four consecutive wins from Willamette University and Washington State College, Oregon's place on the Northwest Conference percentage column was the top. At this point two more victories for Oregon would have put her in a fairly safe position for the Northwest Conference championship.

The next four games scheduled were with O. A. C. Coach George M. Bohler began grooming his quintet for the battles; so did Coach Rutherford of the Aggies. Both teams were in the best of condition for the fray.

The line-ups were practically those that had been used in previous games. The first contest was a spectacular and fight-to-the-finish game, but Oregon had the upper hand from the starting whistle. Captain Eddie Durno lost no time in getting under way. His fast floor work and accurate shooting piled up the score steadily. Both sides played rough and tumble ball, numerous fouls being called—Durno converted 20 out of 23, while Stinson for O. A. C. made 17 out of 21.

The first period of the game, which ended 19 to 11 in Oregon's favor, was fairly even, but the Aggies came back with determination in the second period and gradually decreased Oregon's lead until the score stood 30 to 29 for Oregon when the final whistle sounded.

The second game, though not characterized by the fight of the initial contest, was a well-earned victory. Captain Durno was high point getter in this game as well as in the first. No others succeeded in starring to the extent that their names were mentioned among the luminaries; however, everyone played good consistent ball.

A week later O. A. C. sent her quintet against Oregon on the home floor. Apparently disturbed by the two defeats of a week back, O. A. C. showed up poorly. Oregon's guards were responsible for the low score made by the Aggies. Hugh Latham, who cavorts around the center position for Oregon, showed up exceptionally well. Aside from blanking his man he annexed 8 points. The game ended 42 to 13 in Oregon's favor.

Likewise in the fourth struggle with O. A. C. Oregon played up to usual good form, leaving the rival aggregation to mourn four consecutive defeats. The last game ended 37 to 19. Before the game was two-thirds played the score became so one-sided that Coach Bohler put in the whole second string and held the Aggies down with comparative ease.

The two hardest games of the season were those with the University of California. A spectacular rally in the last five minutes of play swung the first game against the varsity by the narrow margin of 26 to 23; the second game ended 24 to 18 in favor of the bears.

The loss of both California games put Oregon out of the running for the Pacific Coast Conference title. Both games were the cleanest and fastest of any played this season. The visitors had a very effective scoring machine, operated with a combination of short passes and a system of guarding which was equally strong. Oregon played a good brand of ball, but was unlucky in shooting baskets.

The Idaho game was easily annexed to Oregon's string of victories with the decisive score of 31 to 19. The first period was fairly close but the Gem-Staters could not stand the pace throughout the game. Captain Hunter, of the Idaho five, was the star performer for his team.

The two return games with Washington State College were particularly odd. Though Oregon proved its metal by again taking over the long end of the scores, 37 to 27 in the first game and 35 to 28 in the second, the outlook during the first half of each game was rather dubious. In both cases Washington got the lead before Oregon could get going. Long passes and accurate shooting featured both contests, and in this case served to bring to Oregon absolute assurance of the Northwest Conference championship.

The last two games of the season were with Willamette University. The first was a ragged contest, loosely played by both aggregations. Willamette showed a burst of speed in the second half which nearly proved fatal before Oregon could meet the onslaught. The final score favored Oregon, 25 to 21. The second game was in no wise similar to the first. It was a series of thrills from first to last as indicated by the narrow score, 26 to 25, by which Oregon laid claim to the victory. This was the only game won on the home floor which Oregon was really in danger of losing.

Coach Bohler expressed himself as well pleased with the outcome of the 1921 basketball season, and is very optimistic over the outlook for another year.

Captain Eddie Durno, forward, won a berth on the Pacific Coast Conference team as well as on the Northwest Conference team.

The final standing of both conferences at the close of the season are as follows:

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE STANDINGS

Oregon .....	12	0	1.000
Idaho .....	13	4	.765
Whitman .....	5	6	.455
Willamette .....	4	7	.364
Montana .....	2	6	.250
Washington State .....	3	10	.231
Aggies, Oregon .....	2	8	.200

PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE STANDINGS

California .....	8	2	.800
Washington .....	10	4	.714
Stanford .....	7	3	.700
Oregon .....	8	4	.667
Washington State .....	2	10	.167
Aggies, Oregon .....	1	3	.093

BASEBALL GOING ON SIX DIAMONDS

The opening practice for varsity baseball took place early in March with about 30 contestants out for the team. Captain Bill Reinhart, who was on the varsity basketball team, is now out to whip into shape for the coming season. Bill is a letter man of no little ability and can be relied upon to put forth his best efforts to make a winning team.

Coach Bohler feels no hesitancy in predicting a good season with the material at hand to choose from.

Among the letter men who are back to try for their old positions are "Spike" Leslie, the heavyweight backstop, and Art Berg, the southpaw twirler, who composed the varsity battery most of last year. They are working hard to get up a full head of steam.

The first games of the season are against the University of Washington April 22 and 23, at Seattle. From there the Lemon-Yellow will go to Pullman for a two-game series April 24 and 25, and from Pullman to Walla Walla for the last game of the trip with Whitman, April 27.

A great deal is being done to provide adequate facilities for practice. When four new diamonds now under construction are finished, there will be six fields for baseball. Coach Bohler will at once begin a series of games in the doughnut league as a means of fostering interest in the sport. This plan was followed in basketball and proved very successful. Aside from unearthing many new luminaries, it stimulated a keen interest in every housing organization on the campus. Baseball equipment, consisting of gloves, balls, and catcher's outfit is provided by the University. It is believed that this arrangement will have its effect on the class of ball played by the varsity.

The schedule in full for the season is as follows:

VARSITY BASEBALL

April 9—North Pacific Dental College .....	Eugene
April 12—Colored White Sox .....	Eugene
April 15, 18—Willamette .....	Eugene
April 22, 23—University of Washington .....	Seattle
April 25, 26—Washington State College .....	Pullman
April 27—Whitman .....	Walla Walla
April 28—Kennewick .....	Kennewick, Washington
April 29—North Pacific Dental College .....	Portland
April 30—M. A. A. C. .....	Portland
May 6, 7—University of Washington .....	Eugene
May 11, 12—Washington State College .....	Eugene
May 20, 21—O. A. C. (Junior Week-End) .....	Eugene
May 27, 28—O. A. C. .....	Corvallis

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

April 8, 9—Chemawa .....	Chemawa and Salem
May 20, 21—O. A. C. Rooks .....	Corvallis
May 27, 28—O. A. C. Rooks .....	Eugene

The freshman schedule will be supplemented with other high school games during the season.

The tennis schedule for the year:

Pacific Coast Conference Tennis Meet at Eugene, for men only, will take place May 20 and 21.

A schedule has been arranged with O. A. C., Willamette, Reed College and M. A. A. C., for men and women—dates not yet set.

Spring football under Coach "Shy" Huntington started April 8. The practice will consist of passing the ball, punting, signal practice, line work and new plays.

The Woman's Building to Be Dedicated May 7

Impressive exercises will mark the dedication of the woman's building when, on May 7, this gift from the hands of thousands of people is formally presented to the state.

During the morning there will be a session presided over by Dr. John Bovard, dean of the school of physical education. Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland, will be the principal speaker on a program featuring physical education. The men's and women's glee clubs will sing.

At noon there will be a luncheon for invited guests.

The afternoon session will begin with the dedicatory service, over which President Campbell will preside. The building will then be given formally to the state and accepted for the state by Judge J. W. Hamilton, president of the board of regents.

Those who have been called to speak during the afternoon services are: Governor Ben Olcott; Edgar B. Piper, of the Oregonian, representing the state press; A. C. Dixon, representing the board of regents; Frank L. Chambers, representing the business interests of Eugene; Dean John Straub; R. B. Beekman, representing the alumni association, and Frederick L. Holman. Rabbi Wise will deliver the invocation and Bishop Walter Sumner the benediction. The University orchestra will present numbers.

During the afternoon and again in the evening there will be receiving in Alumnae hall for guests of the day, alumni, faculty and students.

OREGON MEDICAL SCHOOL NEWS

By A. G. Bettman, '07

Forty-five per cent of all the graduates of the Oregon medical school (including Willamette University medical graduates) whose present addresses are known were in military service during the war.

The new Multnomah hospital adjoining the medical school is rapidly being completed. It is a fireproof building with a capacity of two hundred beds.

Richard F. Dillehunt, dean of the medical school, returned recently from a trip to Chicago to attend the meeting of the council on medical education and hospitals of the American Medical association.

The next annual meeting of the medical school alumni association will be held in Portland, May 31 to June 2. The program will provide clinics and papers and a business meeting. The Noble Wiley Jones lectureship of the school will be held the evenings of May 31 and June 1. Dr. Williams Ophuls of San Francisco will deliver the lectures. The officers of the association are: Otis F. Akin, '09, president; George A. Cathey, '09, first vice-president; C. J. Hoffman, '07, second vice-president; Charles L. Rybske, '09, third vice-president; C. E. Strafrin, '11, fourth vice-president; Kitty Plummer Gray, '00, treasurer; and A. G. Bettman, '07, secretary.

Anton Gaston Allen, '19, is practicing in Astoria.

Harry Blackford, '14, is practicing in Seattle.

John J. Darby, '18, recently went to Cragmont, Idaho.

James A. Darby, '09, has moved to Astoria.

George Earl Fortmiller, '18, is practicing in Springfield.

Trenton William Johnston, '19, is on the medical staff at the Eastern Oregon insane asylum at Pendleton.

William C. Munley, '16, is with the American forces in Germany. His address is Station Hospital, A. F. G., Coblenz.

H. William Steelhammer, '15, is located at Vale.

A. E. Younie, '12, is on the U. S. S. Niagara.

W. W. Oglesby, '77, died in December at Cottage Grove.

Dwight F. Miller, '13, located recently at Huntington.

Dr. C. W. Sharpless, formerly an instructor in the medical department of Willamette University, died recently at his home in Goshen.

These are Missing

Every day the list of lost in the office of the alumni secretary grows a little shorter. The list of people who have been helping shorten it is too long to print. This time the lost are arranged by years. Aren't there some that you can help on?

MISS CUMMINGS BECOMES HEAD AT WELLESLEY

Miss Mabel L. Cummings, head of the department of physical education for women for more than five years, has been called to head a similar department at Wellesley. Miss Cummings left Oregon at the beginning of the spring quarter but will not establish herself in the East until fall. The intervening time will be spent in research work. The training course for teachers at Wellesley is regarded as the best in the United States. Dr. John Bovard said Miss Cummings was going to the biggest position of its kind in the country. Miss Cummings' successor has not been chosen. Miss Harriet Thompson will be acting head during the spring term.

"TUBBY" NILES' LAST HEADLINE

The story of "Tubby" Niles' last headline, which appeared in the Portland Oregonian just after Christmas, contains a human quality that must have appealed peculiarly to every man who has ever known collegiate athletics. The story, which is copied from the Whitman Alumnus, follows:

"I wonder if I'll get just one more headline in the Oregonian, as I did so often years ago," whispered Royal F. Niles, known a few seasons ago to a multitude of Northwest football followers as "Tubby" Niles, Whitman College fullback, as he lay on his deathbed Sunday night. Over this story is the headline it was his last wish that he might have.

"Tubby" Niles was one of the gamest and greatest fullbacks that ever played in the Pacific Northwest. Through four seasons, 1910, 1911, 1912, and 1913, his name was often on the sports pages for his wonderful playing. And each of the four seasons he was elected on the All-Northwest football team, one year as its captain. That year every writer in the Northwest was unanimous in giving him the honor.

"He weighed, in those days, between 185 and 190 pounds. He followed Vincent Borleske as a super-star in Whitman College football, but he would have been a star on any football eleven in the world. Playing always on a light eleven against heavier opponents, his terrible line plunging never has been surpassed in this section.

"But when he died the 'Tubby' of those days had fallen off in weight until he was a pitiful shadow of the once great athlete. Tuberculosis was the cause. He contracted the disease as the result of influenza while with the American Expeditionary forces in France.

"Niles enlisted in the army in December, 1917. He became ill with influenza on the army transport taking him to France with the 81st field artillery in 1918. He didn't have much of a temperature and the hospitals were all crowded, so he slept with his comrades in the mud. When he was discharged in February, 1919, his voice had gone so that he could speak only in a husky whisper. He sank from then until his death."

Niles was 32 years of age. He had taught at Marshfield, Klamath Falls and La Grande.

REMEMBER THE LIST OF LOST

We miss a piece of real news, something that everybody knows. And by mail, by phone, and by personal visit we are informed of the oversight. Our informers are fretful, are amused, are very grave. But they are righteous, and they are right.

However, we are sincerely grateful for these attentions. And likewise are we grateful for the information that has been coming in about "lost" alumni. One alumnus asserted that there was a dead man on the list—he was sure he was dead. We asked him how he knew.

"Well," he replied with some triumph, "I sang at his funeral."

This month we are arranging the lost by year, although it is difficult to do this accurately in the case of the older records. The year arrangement should make it easier to check up.

IN KANSAS

The University of Kansas recently set out to discover whether Kansas was doing all it should for higher education. It concluded it was not, if the practice in ten neighboring states was any proof.

The university discovered first that Kansas had more students enrolled per thousand of population in its state university and state agricultural college than did any of the ten. Indeed it had 27, whereas Oklahoma had but 10 and Missouri had only 8.

What wealth per capita had it to provide this unusual demand for education, the university was then curious to know. Investigation showed that Kansas ranked fourth in wealth among the 11, but that she stood sixth in expenditure per student and ninth per student in value of buildings provided.

The amount of internal revenue paid by the people of Kansas during the year ending June 30, 1920 on tobacco, theatre tickets, jewelry and soft drinks amounted to nearly three times the amount paid for all higher education by the state. The amount spent for non-necessities in Kansas was not noticeably higher than in neighboring states.

The next item to be considered was state indebtedness, and the disclosure here was that not only did Kansas and Nebraska together stand clearer of debt than any of the 11, but that they had no indebtedness at all.

No indebtedness.

And here the investigator started drawing his conclusions, as follows:

1. By virtue of higher capita wealth, no state debt, and habits of thrift, Kansas is able to support her institutions of higher learning adequately.

2. Since the number of students in her higher institutions is larger than in any other state according to population, she is under obligation to pay more for higher education than other states according to population.

3. Kansas is paying less for salaries, maintenance, and buildings per student enrolled than are most of the other central states.

The principle that one should pay more for education because his neighbors are doing so may not do as a norm by which to judge one's own obligation. But the Kansas method of going at the heart of the problem will awaken much admiration.

FOR LADIES

This month a seventh worthy girl was appointed to receive the scholarship maintained by the University of Oregon Alumnae association.

The Latin grammar of our youth points out that the "æ" ending is feminine plural, the "i" ending is masculine plural, or both masculine and feminine. Accordingly, the alumni and the alumnae associations of the University are different bodies, and dues paid to the one do not liquidate the debts of the other.

And to speak further, it takes two hundred and seventy-two round dollars to provide merely the face of the yearly scholarship which the alumnae association gives. This allows no postage, no traveling expenses, nothing for the maintenance of the association. Mrs. Harris, who directs the scholarship, pays her own traveling expenses, and there is nothing for necessary stenographic work.

Every woman graduate is eligible to membership, and dues are only $1. The money goes direct into the scholarship fund. Can you think of a worthier place to put $1?

Mrs. Harris' address is 1465 Chemeketa street, Salem, Oregon.

WEIGHTED GRADES

Oregon now requires that its graduates achieve a certain quality in work as well as quantity. The change was produced by the simple measure of a faculty vote. This makes it necessary that at least 140 of the 186 hours earned for graduation be of quality "4" or better.

A survey of the class of 1916 made by Dr. A. E. Caswell discloses several of its members, whose names it is not our purpose to set forth, who could not have graduated under a quality or "weighted" system. Some of them might never have been able to graduate.

The University must wonder sometimes how moves like the quality requirement are accepted around the state. A visiting alumnus said recently that the state was all for such moves; that it approved wholly of every standard-raising motion made at the University. One discounts this a little in favor of the hard but safe truth.

Here is a comment from the La Grande Observer, however, from which the faculty ought to be allowed certain edification:

"This adoption of 'weighted' grades for the University is something that the Oregon alumni, friends and taxpayers have been awaiting for some time. It is a big step for Oregon—in the right direction—a step which will put the University on the same high scholastic standard which the leading schools of the nation today maintain."

YALE'S PRESIDENT IS NOT A YALE MAN

The University of Minnesota is feeling a "certain vicarious pride," according to the Minnesota Alumni Weekly, in the fact that the new president of Yale, Dr. James Rowland Angell, was once an assistant in psychology at Minnesota. The Weekly believes his appointment is a real proof of the rumor that the Yale trustees have renounced the idea that a president must have been familiar from his undergraduate days with Yale tradition. Dr. Angell is a graduate of the University of Michigan. "Ever since Yale College decided to grow up into Yale University, it has followed Mr. Greeley's advice with remarkable frequency," the Weekly says.

THE SOLDIER MEMORIAL

A paved court reached by a flight of granite steps and adorned by a group of statuary, flagstaves, and tablets with the names of the honored has been decided as the form of Oregon's soldier memorial. This court will later be flanked by buildings devoted to drama, music and art and will lead into a great memorial auditorium. The court will be finished in about four years. Commencement 1921 will be memorial commencement, plans for the great undertaking to be worked out at that time. Alumni expect to raise not less than $100,000 to assure this memorial.

HAS ITS OWN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The school of commerce has its own chamber of commerce, with active members paying $1 yearly dues.

The Prodigal Sons of Sixteen

Every day brings its letter from some member of the class of 1916 who expects to return for the five-year reunions at Commencement time. Space forbids reproducing them all, or any of them in full. But this is the way they run:

Harry Kuck, publisher of the Pendleton Tribune: I have no doubt the meeting will be crowned with success. Put me down as one who will make every effort to attend.

Prentiss Brown, superintendent of schools at Baker: Five hundred miles is quite a distance for a school teacher to go, but I shall make it. I see no reason why we shouldn't have a great crowd. I think we shall have a crowd.

Katherine Watson Avison, Oakland, California: I am surely planning on the 1916 reunion in June. I'll be up for a visit with the Avisons about that time. Scare up all the old '16-ers that you can.

E. H. Hedrick, superintendent of schools at Central Point: I intend to be back for commencement. I hope all the class will be there.

The Alumni Voice in the Executive Council

The executive council of the A. S. U. O., which in the fall will come in under the new student body constitution as the chief ruling body of the campus, will have two alumni members. One of them will be a faculty person, appointed by the president of the University; the other from the alumni at large, to be elected at the annual June meeting of alumni.

The executive council absorbs the several old councils of the constitution, such as the athletic council, the forensic council and so on. It will make provision for a separate student council, a body which will get big business into shape for the hands of the bigger council and will dispose of small business by itself. Final check on everything concerned with the A. S. U. O. will always be in the hands of the superior council.

Membership in the executive council will be as follows:

(1) President of the University; (2) president of the associated students, (3) three members of the faculty, one of whom shall be a graduate of the University, (4) one alumnus elected by the alumni association, (5) the graduate manager of the associated students (non-voting), (6) vice-president and secretary of the associated students, (7) one woman, elected each year from the senior class of the following year, (8) two men at large, one of whom shall be elected every year from the sophomore class to serve a term of two years.

Under the executive council there are the finance committee, activity committee, the student council, publications, musical organizations, a graduate manager, regular officers of the A. S. U. O., and the women's league.

Arts and Pre-Engineering at Oregon

ics and astronomy and the school of architecture are making their contribution through strong courses in theoretical and applied mechanics, descriptive geometry, drawing and kindred subjects. Chemistry and geology are also adjusting their courses to meet the needs of technical men. The hours and times of the courses in dynamic geology, economic geology and mineralogy are being arranged to fit into the pre-engineering schedule. Last, but not least, the economic perspective is given by courses in principles of economics and advanced economics to be taken in the junior year.

The Prize Picture

We want to lay hands on the best group picture of old graduates that there is in existence.

We want a picture where the football heroes converge from both sides in prone ranks, tending toward a dirty pigskin chalked in white, held in the arms of a wondering mascot. These heroes must have beards and, if possible, hair clubbed fore and aft. Their armor must look like diving suits.

We want a graduating class, with wasp-waisted, high-collared ladies supporting each a voluminous roll of diploma, ribbon-tied; and, alternating with them, smug lads in trousers that never knew the creasing board.

We want collections of vivacious damsels prepared to reinforce the sputtering literary torch of America with the glow of their literary society productions.

Please find this "best picture" and lend it to us. Give as many names as possible. In the commencement number of OLD OREGON we hope to run several "old" pictures, with feature stories about that remoter generation of graduates that we all see too little of.

All pictures will be returned.

THE FAMILY MAIL

Maurice Hyde, '16, writes from San Francisco: When you have been so long away from the campus, OLD OREGON is very gratefully received. I especially enjoyed the news of the classes in the last issue. The magazine is a distinct credit to Oregon and I hope that if there is anything I can do down here to help you will let me know pronto. I am on the copy desk of the San Francisco Bulletin. I have been here six months now and like the work and the paper very much.

Frances Elizabeth Baker, '19, writes from Hood River, where she is director of physical training for high school girls: Put me down for a couple of victrola records of Oregon songs made by an Oregon glee club. That's a great idea! As for the memorial, let's make it something useful. A memorial hall sounds good. Old Villard has served well, but she can't stand up for many more assemblies and rallies such as we had in the good old days. I should like to see a fine up-to-date auditorium, conforming in structure to the buildings of the new campus, and financed not only by the alumni, but by all the people of the state.

Tracy Byers, '19, writes from Idaho Falls, where he is managing editor of the Daily Post: I expect to be here a couple of months longer, so mail me the price of again joining the alumni association.

Lloyd O. Mayer, ex-'11, writes from San Francisco, where he is in business: I have been away from Oregon so many years I must confess to being rather out of touch with University affairs. Last spring I spent a few hours in Eugene and walked through the campus. It had undergone a number of changes since my visit of some nine or ten years ago.

F. S. Adam, ex-'19, writes from St. Anthony, Idaho, where he is manager of an auto accessory firm: I saw Emma Wootton Hall in Salt Lake the other day. She was with her husband, and I couldn't help rubbering at her. I knew her and she knew me, but we didn't know each other's names. But I finally mustered up courage to ask her if she wasn't from U. of O. A year ago I was in the union station in Chicago and an old U. of O. student walked up and slapped me on the back. The world isn't so large.

Lena B. Newton, '13, writes from Teachers College, Columbia University, where she supervises settlement and socialization work: Life here in the settlements in the immigrant communities is great fun, but these first spring days certainly send one's thoughts toward the mill race and the McKenzie.

Mary Smedberg, ex-'99, writes from Marshfield: I am a busy farmer lady, but I shall visit Eugene in the near future. The Dorris girls were my pals and I plan on visiting them in the spring.

W. D. Nickelson, ex-'13, now practicing medicine in New York City, writes: We had a very good club of Oregon people here in New York last year, but old ones have gone and the new ones have not let us know their location. I am endeavoring between patients, operations, etc., to get a list of all Oregon people in or near New York. It will help a great deal if you will make this known in OLD OREGON. In September I expect to take my vacation on the coast. Meantime, my office address has been changed to 10 East 58th street, and I want everyone who hits town to be sure and call on me.

Don T. Orput, '16, manager of the Entertainment Investing association, writes from Berkeley, California: I am heartily in favor of the class reunion plan, but I shall be many miles away during commencement. I am now swamped in preparation for a trip to Texas. We had a fine get-together dinner with Bernice Lucas Dinwiddie a week ago. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. "Bots" Avison, Helen Manning and myself.

Lamar Tooze, '16, writes from Harvard: I can't begin to say how much I regret my inability to be with the class of '16 for its reunion. . . . Dean Allen was through here day before yesterday and we were delighted to see him. He brought good news from the University. He was here but a short time but he certainly saw everything there was to see. He looks ten years younger than when I saw him last, over three years ago.

"THE MIKADO" SHOWS FIVE NIGHTS

Early in March "The Mikado" was presented in Guild Hall, five nights in succession, each night to a crowded house. Madame Rose McGrew, Fergus Reddie, Manford Michael and Norvell Thompson, all of the faculty, took leading parts.

MUSIC BUILDING NEARLY DONE

The studio wing of the new school of music will be ready for occupancy in May. The building, which is nearing completion, will have a brick auditorium seating 615.

THEY RECOGNIZE ARCHITECTURAL SCHOOL

A bulletin from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology comments: "The fifth year includes six men who hold degrees from other colleges; three of these have come to us from the architectural school of the University of Oregon. This nucleus of highly trained men is a stimulus and incentive to the lower classes." Walter Church, '16, received first prize for summer sketches submitted at the beginning of the present scholastic year.

MISS WAKEFIELD CALLED SOUTH

Miss Ethel Wakefield, '20, of the faculty of the University junior high school, was called to California in February by the serious illness of her father. She was away several weeks.

OREGON TAKES BOTH DEBATES

The University won both its debates in the triangular contest with Stanford and Washington. Remy Cox and Frederick Rice secured a unanimous decision over Stanford at Eugene; John Canoles and Kenneth Armstrong won 2-1 from Washington in Seattle. The question was: "Resolved, that congress should pass laws prohibiting strikes in essential industries."

WOMEN STUDY MORE

Women's scholarship at the University leads men's. During the fall term women averaged 3.19, men 3.82.

DEAN ALLEN HAS RETURNED

Eric W. Allen, dean of journalism, has returned from a month's trip East. He attended the meeting of the National Editorial Association at St. Augustine, Florida, and on his return made visits at many schools of journalism and newspaper offices.

THE MOON AND STARS DECIDE IT

Opening and closing of a term will now be automatically determined, just as Easter and election day are. The new system provides sixteen days' vacation at Christmas and nine at spring recess.

DR. BARNETT IS WRITTEN UP

Dr. James D. Barnett was the subject of a biographical sketch by Fred Lockley in the Oregon Journal in February. Dr. Barnett has published two books, was one of the board of editors of the American Political Science Review, and is now associate editor of the National Municipal Review. Dr. Barnett was born in Cairo, Egypt. His father was founder of the American mission there.

THIRTEEN GIRLS' HOUSES WANT CUP

Thirteen women's houses will compete for the Tau Kappa Alpha debate cup which has been won two years by Hendricks hall. One more victory would make the cup a permanent possession. The debate subject is the question of exemption from Panama tolls for American coastwise vessels.

TRY IT ON THE EXTENSION DIVISION

The University Extension Division answers many questions. It has figured out for farmers the amount of hay in a stack, has suggested good books on responsive Bible readings, and has given instructions to persons desiring to start fur farms, specializing in skunk. It was recently asked by a school teacher to say why oleomargarine was universally mispronounced. The division declined regretfully.

OREGON SPEAKER WINS OVER EIGHT

Ralph Hoeber, representing the University in the Old Line Oratorical contest recently held at the Eugene Bible University, won the gold medal offered for first place. His subject was "The New Despotism." Nine state institutions were represented.

DISAPPROVES SCARLET SHEET

Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, passed resolutions in March deprecating the publication of scandal sheets such as have been put out several times at the University during spring vacation.

UNIVERSITY PRESCRIBES ANOTHER UNIT

Hereafter ten units in English, mathematics, languages, history and laboratory science will be required of the entering freshman, instead of nine units as formerly. The remaining five units may be elected, but the faculty recommendation is that significant amounts of a subject be taken. There is an exception in the case of commerce students, who may take as few as seven of the prescribed ten. However, the remaining eight must be directed by the University school of commerce. There must be at least three units in English.

TORCH AND SHIELD DISBANDED BY FACULTY

Because of an improperly conducted dance, where intoxicating liquor was put in the punch bowl, Torch and Shield, sophomore men's society, was disbanded by the student advisory committee in March. The dance objected to was held in January. Torch and Shield was asked to produce the offenders within two weeks on penalty of being dissolved. No report was received from the club during the two weeks. Members were forbidden by the committee to join other similar societies during their collegiate courses. Torch and Shield originated in 1912.

THE BISHOP CAME

Walter Taylor Sumner, Episcopal Bishop of Oregon, made his seventh annual visit to the Oregon campus in March. He spoke in assembly on "Self Government."

TWO UNIVERSITY PARTIES TO TOUR EUROPE

Two parties will visit Europe this summer from the University of Oregon, one under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Fox, dean of women, and Miss Julia Burgess of the English faculty; the other under Miss Louise Fitch, who was head resident of Delta Delta Delta at Oregon several years.

Miss Fitch's party includes members of Tri Delta particularly. The party sails June 18, returning August 29, covering the following itinerary: The Shakespeare country; Flanders, Verdun, Chateau Thierry and Piave battlefields; mountain railways on the Rigi and Brunig Pass; journeys on the lakes of Lucerne, Brienz, Thun and Geneva; the Bay of Naples trip, including Capri and the Blue Grotto and the Amalfi drive; and the ancient Roman cities of Southern France. Miss Fitch has made two trips to Europe, one described in a book written by her brother, George Fitch, "The Twenty-four in Europe," and a second during the war, when she obtained information for a book requested by the Y. W. C. A., "Madame France." Three members of the local chapter of Tri Delta will go, and two from O. A. C. are almost decided. Barbara Booth, '14, will also go from Eugene. The other members are from middle western colleges principally.

The Fox-Burgess party sails July 2 for Havre, visits Paris, Tours, Blois, Lyons, Geneva, Montreux, Baveno, Genoa, Pisa, Rome, Florence, Bologna, Venice, Milan, Lugano, Lucerne, Strasbourg, Brussels, Luxembourg, Bruges, Ostend, London, Oxford, Stratford-on-Avon, and Liverpool. Return will be to Montreal or New York.

Miss Fox spent a year and a half in Europe during the war in official capacity. For nine months she was on a general tour, visiting European universities for the World Student Christian Federation. She made several long auto trips through the western part of France. Miss Burgess visited on the continent in 1911. The following persons will be included in the party:

Charlotte Banfield; Mrs. Marion Veatch; Marie Ridings and Maude Largent, University seniors; Nena Sorensen, '20; Jane Campbell, '24; Mrs. Elsie Bolt and Miss Zelma Sauvain, seniors at Monmouth Normal; Anna S. Johnston and Sarah W. Snowden, New York teachers, and Eleanor Keltner of Eugene. Eleanor McClaine, '14, Frankie Adams and Anna May Chipping have not fully decided.

EDUCATIONAL FRATERNITY COMES IN

P. L. Spencer, senior in education, is president of Chi chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary educational fraternity for men installed on the Oregon campus in February. Phi Delta Kappa has about 3000 members in the United States.

MR. FAIRBANKS' STATUE

Avard Fairbanks' new statue representing the spirit of the Oregon mother, is to be placed on the plot of ground between Susan Campbell hall and Hendricks hall, directly in front of the woman's building.

LOUISE DAVIS TRANSFERS TO Y. W. C. A.

Miss Louise Davis, '20, who has been an assistant in the University library, has been added to the staff of Miss Tirza Dinsdale, Y. W. C. A. secretary at the University.

THE MEDICAL BILL WENT THROUGH

The state legislature passed appropriations for the Oregon Medical School in Portland amounting to about $272,000. This, with a sum expected from the general education board, will make $540,000 to be expended on medical training, medical research, and medical buildings in Portland in 1921-1922.

U. REPRESENTED AT WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

Ollie Stoltenberg, president of the women's athletic association, and Harriet W. Thompson, assistant director of physical education, represented the University at the convention of women's athletic associations in Bloomington, Indiana, in March.

SUSAN CAMPBELL HALL OCCUPIED

During spring vacation about ninety girls took up residence in Susan Campbell hall, new women's dormitory. Miss Mabel Withycombe, daughter of the late Governor James Withycombe, is head resident. She is a graduate of Oregon Agricultural College and has done graduate work elsewhere. The new hall is arranged in suites for four, on the Hendricks hall plan. Each suite contains a large study room, a wardrobe hall with individual closets, a dressing room with lavatory, four dressers and medicine chest, and an outdoor sleeping porch with four single beds. The living rooms are finished in ivory and cream with blue tints in the upholstery.

GIRL SINGERS INVADE VIRGIN SOIL

The women's glee club made a successful circuit of Eastern Oregon towns during spring vacation, under the direction of Professor Leland A. Coon. Members of the club spoke before high school audiences in most of the towns visited, sang in churches, were entertained with dinners and dances, and everywhere spread Oregon gospel. Enterprise, one of their stops, had never heard a girls' glee club before.

RUSHING WILL NOT INTERFERE

Sorority rushing will be confined in the fall to the days of registration, so as not to interfere with University work. Pledge day will occur Tuesday instead of Saturday. The rushing season will probably open on Thursday or Friday preceding Monday registration.

LEWIS R. ALDERMAN MARRIED

Lewis R. Alderman, '08, was married March 28 to Mrs. Irene Moody, of Vancouver, B. C. President Campbell, an old classmate of Mr. Alderman's, was best man. For several years Mr. Alderman was on the faculty of the University, became state superintendent of public instruction, and at present is educational adviser to the United States navy bureau of navigation at Washington, D. C. His daughter, Fannie Ruth, is a freshman at the University.

SHE MUST STUDY AS WELL AS DANCE

Heads of departments who feel that University women should be barred from social activities because they have not the physical strength both to get lessons and to attend dances have been provided a remedy. The young woman is reported to the dean of women, who may make the prohibitory ruling. A recommendation from the physical education department is necessary to remove the ban.

PHI DELTA HOUSE TO BECOME CATHOLIC CLUB

The Newman Club, Catholic organization, has bought the Phi Delta Theta house on Kincaid street. A $5000 religious library will be installed. The upper part of the house will be used for dormitory purposes.

JOURNALISM PRESIDENT VISITS

Margaret Garvin Stone, grand president of Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism fraternity for women, visited the Oregon campus in March. She is a graduate of the University of Montana.

The Political Science club completed organization in March. Horace Hair was elected president, Wilford Allen vice-president, and Kenneth Lancefield secretary-treasurer.

MISS CASE WITH ELLISON-WHITE

Victoria Case, '20, is booking entertainments for the Ellison-White Chautauqua people in Oregon towns. In the fall she did graduate work at the University.

ENTIRE EIGHTH GRADE INSPECTS UNIVERSITY

The four members of the eighth grade at Upper Camp Creek visited the University campus one day in March. They also visited industrial plants in Eugene, the day being called "practical civics day" by their teacher. The whole school was on holiday for the event.

THE "JAZZY GENERAL" RETURNED

Colonel John Leader and Mrs. Leader visited on the campus in March. The Daily Emerald said in comment: "If there's a little extra breeziness about the campus this week, there's a reason. Colonel Leader is 'in our midst.' Lieutenant-Colonel John Leader, former commander of the Royal Irish Rifles, wounded veteran of the Somme, is remembered by all who were at Oregon during the war period, as the jazzy general of the University cadet corps."

MR. SHEPARD PLANTS SHRUBS AND FLOWERS

An extensive program of shrub and flower planting goes on under the supervision of Donald Shepard, the University's new landscape gardener. The effect is already noticeable around such uncompromising buildings as the library, Deady and Johnson hall, which are not much covered by ivy. Mr. Shepard says the effect will not really be noticeable for a year.

UNIVERSITY INFIRMARY BUSY

During February the University infirmary treated 190 cases of varying disease and injury among women and 222 among men. Thirty-one women patients and 17 men spent days in bed at the infirmary.

HUNTINGTON PRAISED AT MEDFORD

The Medford Sun for March 6 said: "'Shy' Huntington of the University of Oregon, who refereed the Ashland-Medford basketball games . . . . was the best referee appearing here during the season. And most of them were excellent."

BROWNELL FRAZIER HAS BEST DESIGN

Brownell Frazier won a campus contest for a sculpture design to be placed over the side entrance of the new art building, the one-time women's gymnasium.

GAMMA PHI BETA WON BASKETBALL CUP

Gamma Phi Beta won the women's house series of basketball games by defeating Hendricks hall 24 to 23. This gives Gamma Phi the Laraway cup for a year.

WILL ENTERTAIN FOOTBALL SQUAD AT HONOLULU

A Honolulu dispatch says an Oregon club is being formed for the purpose of providing suitable welcome for the University of Oregon football team when it goes to the Islands at Christmas.

Up to the Time

of the first Liberty Loan it was said that there were not to exceed 300,000 individuals in the country who regularly invested in Bonds.

Now—

there are many millions of men and women who have learned that a properly safeguarded Bond represents—

- (1) A lien on property and earning power.
- (2) A source of regular income to the owner.
- (3) Something which can be converted into cash by sale.
- (4) A sane and easy way to put money to work at a profit.

Lieutenant Alexander Pearson spent ten days this spring lost between El Paso and San Antonio, between which points he was making a flight by airplane. Trouble began when his plane was damaged by a fall in a desert-like region. He drank some of the water in the engine and set out to find aid. Sand storms blotted out the path, but he kept on without food for three days. Finally he reached the Rio Grande and floated down the river on a log. It was several hours afterward that he saw two ranchmen, who helped him out and gave him food. Sixty-five army planes had been in ceaseless search for him when he finally established connections again with El Paso.

Are YOU Acquainted with the Extension Division?

The greatest regret felt by many people is that they have been denied the pleasures and advantages of a university education.

You will find some of these people in your own community. They are competent, willing, energetic, but have simply not had a chance.

Will you do them a service by telling them about the Extension Division of the University of Oregon? Tell them

Over eighty courses are offered by correspondence.

The only entrance requirement is ability to profit by the instruction.

They may register at any time.

Both under-graduate and graduate credit may be earned.

That the average fee charged for the courses is $3.00.

The Extension Division now has over 800 registrations, and the number is constantly increasing. The first annual was issued in January, 1921, and copies of the monthly magazine, "The Monitor," are mailed to every student.

New courses are being added from time to time. Among the latest are courses in Commercial French and Spanish, Oregon History, Psychology, School Administration, Social and Economic History, Mathematics of Investment, and Short Story.

Send us a list of names to whom catalogues should be sent, or suggest they write directly to us for further information.

GRAHAM'S

FOOTWEAR

828 Willamette Street, Eugene

Freshman Mary, quite contrary,
Where does your money go?
For hairnets and shoes,
And ribbons and rouge,
And trips down town to the Rainbow.

Going where they all go is part of college life.
Freshman Mary's monthly check has to stretch sometimes as if it were written on rubber instead of on paper.

The Rainbow is where they all go, after the show, after the dance, and sometimes in the afternoon without any excuse at all.
